

A sample of X is created for each of the Y values generated in (c) by selecting a random sample from the continuous uniform PDF spanning the range of the bin. This is illustrated here for two separate samples selected randomly from the 5th bin.